Comrades pre-season continued with a draw at Moyola Park in a match played in beautiful Autumn sunshine.

The home side was the first to threaten in the 9th minute, when Jack Ferguson has to be alert to turn an effort wide of the post.

At the other end Comrades struggled to create much. The first real test for the home 'keeper was not until the 37th minute when he had to make a save from an Elliot McKim free kick hot from 20 yards.

After the uneventful first half, the second 45 minute proved to be a livelier affair. The visitors started the half strongly. On 48 minutes a trialist headed just over from 7 yards after being found by a Lee McCune cross. Then three minutes later Thomas Robinson had an effort blocked on the line.

Despite Comrades' good start to the half it was the hosts who took the lead. In the 54th minute they got a penalty when one of their players was fouled after a good run into the box. No mistake was made from the spot.

The visitors continued to look sharp going forward with Thomas Robinson prominent. However, they had to wait until 79 minutes to get their reward when Ashton McDermott head in at the near post from 8 yards from a Gary Donnelly corner.
